

ARCHOS Unveils the ChefPad, a Tablet for the cooking enthusiast

A fully Google certified tablet, the ChefPad features a unique Chef Apps Zone, HD 1080p video playback, front and back cameras, Android 4.1, a fast dual-core 1.6 GHz CPU

Denver, CO – May 13th, 2013 - ARCHOS, a pioneer in Android™ devices, is pleased to announce the ChefPad, a tablet designed for cooking enthusiasts. This specially designed cooking assistant made for both the kitchen and personal entertainment, is loaded with features like a powerful dual-core 1.6 GHz processor, quad-core Graphics processor, front and back cameras for sharing your latest culinary creations, 1080p video playback and a direct access to thousands of apps, videos, and music to cook by through Google Play.

The 9.7" ChefPad powered by Android 4.1 "Jelly Bean" will be available starting in June for $209.99 MSRP at www.ARCHOS.com.

Exclusive to the ChefPad is the Chef Apps Selection, where aspiring Chefs can discover a selection of the best cooking apps ranging from recipes, cooking tips and cooking TV to cooking assistant apps. This exclusive app program curates the best of all apps from Google Play in any specified category making it easier for the end user to find the right content.

"The ChefPad is the first ARCHOS tablet to use this filtering technology," says Loïc Poirier, CEO of ARCHOS. "This is just the beginning for ARCHOS tablets using this technology; we will continue to launch new and exciting themed tablets that curate apps in such categories as kids apps, games, educational apps, business/productivity apps and more.”
